

FIRST WINNER—The first blue ribbon of the International Livestock Show in Chicago went to Donna Mae Wiese, 14, of Charlotte, Mo., for her Junior Shorthorn steer, judged the best in its class.

DETAINED BY REDS—Brig. Gen. Robert H. Soule, above, U.S. military attaché at Nanking, is one of a number of Americans whose detention by Chinese Communists has caused storms of protest in this country and elsewhere. For over two months he has been denied an exit permit.

KING AND PRINCE OF CORN—At the International Livestock Show in Chicago, Charles N. Fischer and his son, Leonard, 13, show samples of the corn that won them the titles Corn King and Corn Prince of America. The Fischers raised the prize-winning ears—Indiana Hybrid 844-D—on their farm near Shelbyville, Ind.

"TAKE 'ER UP!"—Chief of the sidewalk superintendents at the raising of the annual Christmas tree—a 75-foot Norway spruce—in Rockefeller Center, New York, was little Jane Messing, 4, of Philadelphia. Workman Michael Duva sits in the 10-ton tree, which is coated with flameproof silvery paint.

BOWLES' NOMINEE—William Benton of Southport, above, is expected to be named by Connecticut Gov. Chester Bowles to the Senate, replacing Republican Sen. Raymond Baldwin, who resigned to accept a state position. Benton, a former partner of Bowles in a New York advertising firm, is an independent.

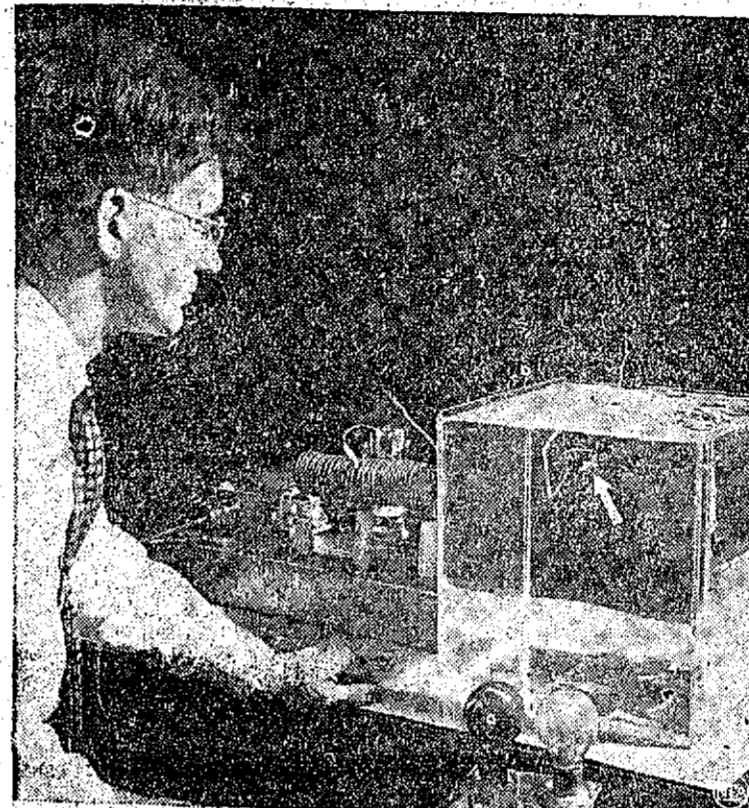

ATOMIC TEST CHIEF—Lt. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada of the Air Force, above, will command the joint task force that will carry out a new series of atomic bomb tests at Eniwetok Island in the Pacific. Exact dates of the tests, sponsored jointly by the Defense Department and the Atomic Energy Commission, were not disclosed for security reasons.

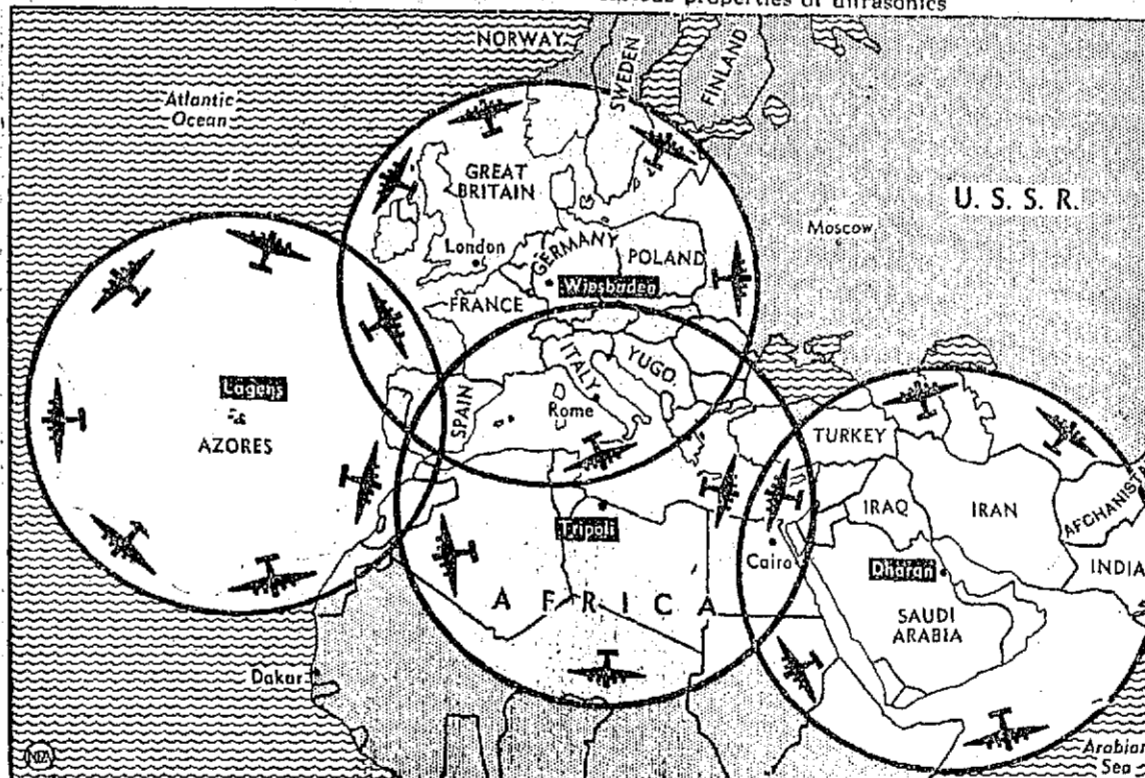

GRAND CHAMPION OF THEM ALL—"Judge Roy Bean," a 1280-pound yearling Hereford, was named grand champion steer at the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago. Members of the Pecos County 4-H Club, Ft. Stockton, Tex., who raised the steer as a club project, are seen celebrating his victory. Will Slater, 15, right, was the original owner of the prize steer.

"NICE WORK, OL' SOCK"—Joseph Dollnaj of Dunnellen, N. J., crochets as usual after winning first prize in the "Men Only" division of a national crocheting contest in Chicago. Dollnaj, a railroad signal towerman, took up needlework five years ago after betting his wife $5 he could beat her at the art.

NOW, HEAR THIS—Ultrasonics—or, sound waves pitched too high for human ears to hear—cause this fountain to spurt from a water tank in a General Electric laboratory at Schenectady, N. Y. The sound waves come from a dime-sized disk of barium titanate (arrow). When voltage is applied the material vibrates at extremely high frequencies, and the concave disk focuses the waves upward, causing the water jet. The apparatus was set up to study the curious properties of ultrasonics.

WORLD RESCUE SQUADS FOR U. S. AIR FORCE—Wiesbaden, Germany, is the headquarters of a new airborne rescue unit being organized by the U. S. Air Force to sweep one-eighth of the world's air-lanes in searches for missing planes. Four flights of B-17 Flying Fortresses carrying aerial lifeboats will operate from Logans in the Azores; Tripoli; Dharan, Saudi Arabia; and Wiesbaden. The map above indicates general areas to be covered from each outpost. In addition to B-17s, each rescue team will include one C-82 "flying boxcar" and a helicopter which it can carry.

TOKYO'S LITTLE "GIANT"—Midget fire engines, named "Giant," are a new item on the Japanese market. Salesman Muneshige Sasaki shows off his firm's product, a three-wheeled motorcycle with fire-fighting equipment mounted aboard. The outfit sells for about $1300.

SMOOCHES FOR "MR. SMITH"—A Chester White hog named "Light Green Smith" was practically smothered with kisses from Hal White, left, and "Hot" Michels after taking second place in competition at the International Livestock Show in Chicago. "Mr. Smith's" real distinction is that he is a city slicker among hogs, having been raised within the city limits of Chicago.

NOW, SANTA WILL COME—Soft coal miner Joe Sloka and his wife, Naomi, of Gladden, Pa., help their six children celebrate the fact that Santa isn't dead. John L. Lewis' order permitting the miners to work three days a week greatly improves chances that the Slokas and thousands like them will enjoy a merry Christmas.

REUNION AFTER FORTY YEARS—A lifetime of separation is ended as Displaced Person Jacob Kalvan, 48, left, is greeted by his brothers, Isidore and David, as he arrives in New York aboard the SS General Ballou. Jacob, who had not seen his American brothers in 40 years, survived both World Wars by going underground in Europe. He was brought to New York under auspices of the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society.

ARTIST WITH POLISH—Surrounded by specimens of her work, sculptress Dora Gordin polishes the already gleaming floor of her house. Visitors to her South London, England, home are asked to remove their shoes so as not to spoil the glass-like sheen of the floors.

Usual Freak Incidents Described

Bald Knob Dec. 12 —(A)— Here are some of the freak happenings of yesterday's tornado that raked parts of central Arkansas:

At Providence, Ernest Robbins family had just left their home headed for the Velvet Ridge community when the twister picked up their six-room, frame house and moved it 41 feet. It was slightly damaged.

A few minutes after they left Velvet Ridge, the storm struck near that community, causing some damage to several outbuildings and farm houses.

Several glass trinkets on a "what-not-shelf," hanging in his living room, were not disturbed by the movement of his house. Glass jars and vases on the dining room table were upright.

A few feet from Robbins' house the howling wind tore out an entire rock wall of the Church of Christ. It looked like an artillery shell had exploded in the structure. Some of the chunks of stone, weighing 50 pounds or more, were several feet from the church.

On the other side of Robbins' house, the storm blew down the front wall of a service station-grocery. It heaped up piles of concrete blocks, glass and wood. An automobile parked a few feet from the station was not damaged.

At the Cross Roads community the tornado cut a path through a thick grove of gum trees. It looked like a trail about 20 yards wide, had been blown through the trees. The only thing intact at the homestead of John Winingham was a front door step. The rest of the house had been picked up, twisted apart and then tossed in bits on the ground for about one-half mile.

Two dogs apparently were under Winingham's house when the tornado struck; they escaped injury. Several dozen eggs, laying on the ground under the house, were intact.

The gum thicket across the road from the house was littered with debris and rubble from the three-room frame house. Sheets, pillows, bits of mattresses, pieces of clothes were scattered in the trees like laundry hung out to dry. A man's shirt was draped atop a limb about 35 feet high.

The storm struck the house from the rear and was moving north-west. Part of the front porch was found several feet back of the house; the wreckage of the house was up and down a road several hundred feet in front of the foundation.

Alcoa Workers Go Back to Jobs in Arkansas

By The Associated Press

Three hundred twenty-five wage earners go back to work Monday, ending another strike in Arkansas.

The men, employees of Aluminums Company of America bauxite mining and processing plants at Bauxite and Sweet Home, had been idle nearly two months pending settlement of CIO negotiations with Alcoa on a national scale. The dispute was settled last week.

The Alcoa walkout followed not long after settlement of a strike at the Reynolds Metals company's operations in Arkansas.

Labor-management disputes continue at two other plants — at the Ozark Hardwood Co., at Clarksville and a basket factory at Jonesboro. The latter is the oldest strike in the state. About 125 AFL union workers have been out since April.

The Clarksville controversy produced an unusual development when a representative of the management was charged with violating Arkansas' controversial anti-strike labor law. Mrs. Ada Mills, bookkeeper for the firm, is accused of using threats and force to prevent striking workers from picketing the plant.

The charges were filed three days after the United States Supreme court upheld constitutionality of the law — to the expressed disappointment of organized labor spokesmen and the gratification of the Arkansas Free Enterprise association, an organization of business operators.

Famed Cartoonist Succumbs in Washington

Washington, Dec. 12 —(A)— Clifford K. Berryman, whose gently effective cartoons adorned Washington front pages for 53 years, died peacefully yesterday at the age of 60.

The Evening Star cartoonist — dean of his profession in America, Pulitzer prize winner and friend of presidents since this century began — also won a niche in American history as originator of the "Teddy Bear."

Berryman collapsed in the lobby of the Star Nov. 17 as he went to work, and died yesterday morning at his home of a heart ailment. He had been home from the hospital 10 days.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 11 a. m. EST, at the Washington Heights Presbyterian church, which he helped to build and where he was a regular attendant.

Rookie Cop Was Fooled for a Minute

North Little Rock, Dec. 12 —(A)—For a moment there, rookie Policeman Robert Gwancy thought he didn't know his own strength.

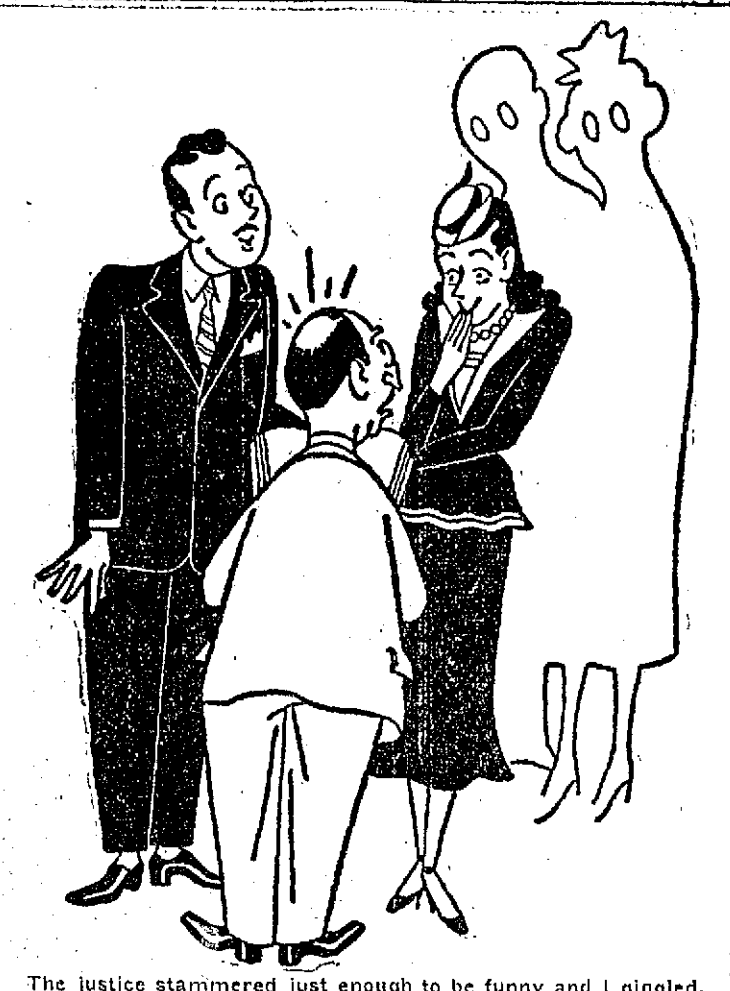

When a prisoner became unruly at the city jail, Gwancy dove into the melee with a vim, downing his man with a lusty tackle.

The young policeman came up with leg in his hand. "I thought I had broken his leg off at the knee," he gasped. He had, but it was an artificial limb.

I Love My Doctor

By Evelyn Barkins

The justice stammered just enough to be funny and I giggled.

Before my marriage, there had been good reason for alarm. The unattached girl giggled and whispered: "You know how the fellows look at me?" and obviously, every one did.

The wisest, but still comparatively immature matrons, breathed, "My dear, you've no idea what passion really is!" and sighed appreciatively.

But, as I told John after we were married, "For heaven's sake, darling, don't people make a big fuss about such a little matter?" To which he replied facetiously: "What did you expect? An atomic explosion?"

As for our wedding itself, it was inauspicious, copywriting more with the dictionary definition, rather than the social one. This was true, mostly, because nobody concerned thought we should get married anyway. I was too young (and still in school); John was too poor, (intern's pay was $15 per month, plus room, board and uniforms).

Everybody, but John and me, agreed it would be far more sensible to wait. "What for?" asked John, "and why?"

"Well," said mother, carefully looking away, "It's all right for just the two of you. But what if — or — certain accidents happen?"

But John was unmoved. "You forget," he said seriously, "that I am a doctor." Heaven knows that in all the world there is no one more self-consciously The Doctor, than the brand new one.

But mother sniffed. "And you forget," she reminded him ominously, "that you are also a man." But my father, who never let my mother stand alone, if he could help it spoke too.

"What will you live on, young man?" he began, and much more. John and I outlined our plans. In a few weeks he would have completed his hospital internship. Meanwhile, we would live in a furnished room, then find a small apartment, open an office and start growing rich. I would finish up my law course (only two school hours each morning), help him with the nursing and secretarial work, and eventually hang out my own shingle and contribute another large portion to our mutual wealth.

"I can only see," my mother answered angrily, as if there were brass knuckles on her tongue, "that you two are beyond making any sense. Let's discuss this at another time, when you may be more reasonable."

So we discussed it again and again and again, until to break the deadlock and attain our goal, John and I decided to elope to City Hall.

When we went to get our marriage license, the clerk refused my application because I was under 21.

"What should we do now?" we asked him in dismay.

"Get a birth certificate or a note from your doctor testifying as to your date of birth," he replied by rote, completely oblivious of our plight, and more as if he were ordering: ham sandwich on rye, hold the pickle, no mustard.

"Oh, John," I wailed as we walked away. "Now what?"

"Got a certificate at home?" he asked.

I shook my head.

"Well, then who is your family doctor?"

"Out of the city," I answered. My mother always regarded our ability to understand each other's unmatching questions and answers as a sure sign of marital insanity, but John always called it perfect camouflage.

For a long while, three whole minutes, we stood blocking the traffic of other eager aspirants, while reviewing our situation.

"I've really got it," I said. "You're a doctor, John. You write me a note as to my date of birth on your prescription blank and sign it. Then we'll give it to the clerk and get the license."

The note, written, we reapproached the desk. Without a glance or a word (we could have worn gas masks for all he looked or cared), the clerk handed us the license. To this day John tells our children that he got my by fraud and for some incomprehensible reason, it makes him the Great Lover, and all of them happy.

The wedding ceremony itself, which followed immediately like the check before the dessert routine in Max's Busybee during lunch hour, was distinctly unimpressive. The office we stood in was dark and bare, and smelled like a coat closet full of wet umbrellas, and dirty clothes. The witnesses, brought in out of the hall, were two dark shadows behind me. The justice himself was a short, queer-looking man, with a round shiny bald spot right in the middle of his head that reflected the electric light above him as does a shimmering pool of water. He stammered just enough to be funny, and I giggled.

As the little man began to read, though, the seriousness of the situation overwhelmed me, and just as I was becoming thoroughly frightened, it began to seem unreal instead. It did not appear to be possible that a few words read out of a little black book by a homely, strange person could actually create the relationship of husband and wife.

I was terrified. This was my wedding. This was for keeps, for ever. Tomorrow there was no going back or today, no turning away. I knew that I loved John and that he loved me. But who could tell? Life was something tremendous and terrible before me, indefinable, unyielding, frightening. How could anyone know anything for sure? All the calculated warnings I had heard, all the literary admonitions I had read came home to roost with shattering effects.

Suddenly, I felt the ring on my finger, and we were married. John in the meantime, had contributed his own piece of individuality to the event. Three times, during the ceremony, whenever the little man paused for breath, John turned and kissed me. "Sorry," he muttered when reproached, "I thought it was all over."

A very unusual w-wedding, the justice said with apparent displeasure, as he pocketed his fee; "that's the trouble with folks today. Don't anybody realize what marriage means any more?"

We stayed at a near-by small hotel for most of the summer until John finished his internship and we found a place to live. Our room, No. 518 at hotel rooms ordinarily go, was probably as common as orange juice and toast for breakfast. But since I had never been in a hotel room before, my mind must have been subconsciously harboring something out of the motion picture set of "Anthony and Cleopatra," for at first glance, I was somewhat disappointed. The plain wooden bed, the scratched, anemic looking dresser, the thin, straight, rheumatic chair were no balm to my romantic spirit.

I turned to John expecting to share my disappointment, only to note with surprise that he had never even noticed the room at all. It didn't take me long to realize that while clothes may make the man, furniture certainly doesn't make the honeymoon.

My mother, naturally, had offered us the opportunity to share the family bed and board, until we secured our own apartment. "It'll save us hotel money," I told John when I repeated the invitation. "And we can probably chisel in on some food as well."

"But," asked John, "It is difficult in any marriage to be completely honest at all times; in early marriage, it is doubly so. The emotion is like a blinding fog, across the eyes; the shadowy unknown places in each other's character loom like big, black dan-

GOP Leaders Plan for '50 Campaign

By JACK BELL

Washington, Dec. 12 (A)— Republican roll up to a political crossroads this week in the 1950 congressional campaign.

Party leaders face financial and strategic decisions at meetings in New York and Chicago. Individual members already were busy trying to set the Republican vehicle in the directions they think victory lies next year.

R. Douglas Stuart of Lake View, Ill., newly appointed party treasurer, began mapping a fund drive. His appointment was announced Saturday. He succeeds James S. Kemper of Chicago, who resigned Nov. 3 because the party's reserve fund had dwindled to only $90,000.

Stuart is vice chairman of the board of the Quaker Oats company of Chicago, and a national Boy Scout official.

Senator Jenner (R-Ind.) called for a different turn on international affairs, blasting again at the bipartisan foreign policy which has had the loving care of Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.)

Senator Aiken (R-Vt.) took on Senator Bricker (R-O) to task for suggesting formation of a new party through a coalition of Southern Democrats and Northern Republicans.

That just wouldn't work, Vermont senator said. He added that he does think a lot of Democrats will join the Republicans in opposing too much centralization of government power in Washington.

Former President Herbert Hoover is expected to touch on that theme in a speech here tonight to the national reorganization conference. He is calling for economy in government, a theme song most of his Republican colleagues seem willing to adopt.

In Cleveland, Senator Taft (R-Ohio) will wind up a pre-campaign tour of his home state with a meeting of county leaders. Taft recently declared war on what he called the "Truman administration's aim for a 'hand out' state."

Taft's views are expected to carry weight when the GOP's 23-member strategy committee meets in Chicago tomorrow under the leadership of Arthur Summerfield, Michigan national committeeman. Taft won't be there in person.

The group is expected to discuss the issuance later of a statement of Republican intent for the 1950 campaign. It will have to decide also how far its thinks the Republicans ought to go in opposing what Mr. Truman has labeled his "fair deal" program.

That question also is before the generous craters. I have always been grateful that John and I instinctively chose the direct route. "It's this way darling," I said. "Despite all their best intentions, we'll have as much privacy as an office clock near closing time. And legal or not, it'll still be like having a man in my bedroom, and I couldn't feel comfortable with the family probably wondering what was going on. And besides," I finished, "since we aren't having a real honeymoon, I want us to be alone, at least, like this."

John sighed with relief, and gave me a tremendous hug. "And I was afraid you might want to go," he laughed. "But who wants to be economically sensible?"

So we sent our thanks home, and kept ourselves this 518

McMath Back From Tour of East

Little Rock, Dec. 12 (A)— Governor McMath has returned home after a week of promoting Arkansas and talking with Democratic party leaders in New York and Washington.

He thinks he got in some good licks for the state.

For one thing, he and other members of his party discussed the state's resources with eastern industrialists and the young governor believes "we were able to convince them an investment in Arkansas would be sound and safe."

They have more than a passing interest in new areas for investment, said McMath. They have money which should be put to work.

He had a round of talks with representatives of some of the major banking houses, and he believes that when Arkansas offers its next $7,000,000 worth of highway bonds to the highest bidder, the state will get an interest rate equal to 2.35 per cent it received last June — or better.

McMath spent a week in the East. Returning his plane was grounded at Memphis Saturday night and he had to travel the last lap by car.

Soldier Quits Marriage in Record Time

Los Angeles, Dec. 12 —(A)— A 19 year old bride said it took Gilbert Trevis, her 22 year old soldier-husband, just five and one-half hours to convince himself that marriage was not for him.

Mrs. Martha S. Trevis, 19, asked superior court to grant her either annulment or divorce. Her petition stated they were married last April 23 at 4:30 p. m. and at 10 p. m., he was on his way out for keeps.

She said that he crumpled up the marriage certificate and threw it at her with the remark: "This is what I think of marriage."

SWC Teams to Play 20 Games This Week

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 12 — (AP) — Southwest conference basketball teams face a stiff 20-game schedule this week, 13 of them inter-sectional tilts.

The surprising Texas Christian university Horned Frogs and the not so surprising Baylor Bears are setting the pace in non-conference play.

TCU has won four straight games and Baylor three. Last year, Baylor shared the title with Arkansas and Rice.

Out-of-state foes are on tap this week for Arkansas, Baylor, Texas, Texas A. and M. and Texas Christian.

Two games tonight open the busy schedule. Texas A. and M. host Abilene Christian college at College Station and Texas Christian goes to Columbia, Mo., to take on Missouri.

A. and M. is the only team that hasn't won at least one game. The Aggies' ambitious early season schedule against top Eastern and Midwestern teams has proven too tough. They dropped decisions to St. Louis and Oklahoma A. and M. last week.

McDonald of Rice sets the early scoring pace with 69 points. Jack Brown of Southern Methodist is next with 65, ten points more than George McLeod of Texas Christian has scored.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.

New York, Dec. 12 — (AP) — Holy Cross athletic authorities are waiting to hear from Bill Osmanski whether he's ambitious to undertake another season of coaching after the one he just had.

One report on Bill Osmanski's difficulties is that the athletes got into so many disputes in the huddles that one player cleaned him out to stop three fights before plays could be run.

Anyways, there's not much chance that he'll buy up Bill's contract. The alumni don't want to pick up a $30,000 salary for a guy who makes a pretty good living as a dentist and only coaches in his spare time.

Monday Matinee

Jack Gardner, Kansas State coach, tabs basketball as the "worst piece of legislation we ever put on the books."

Jack argues that it reduces basketball to a 38-minute game and too many people walk out in the last ten minutes.

Bob Suben, Indiana football center, is definitely "off" formal parties at his fraternity house.

After one of those affairs recently, Bob complained: "I washed dishes for three and a half hours and didn't even have a co-ed to help me."

Cleaning The Cuff

In case you hadn't noticed, the Southeastern conference has adopted a "rotating" basketball schedule, grouping natural rivals with only single games against the other teams. The conference tournament, if it is held, no longer will decide the champion.

Missouri will be one of the principal speakers at Joplin, Mo., Jan. 19 when a street will be named after Gabby Street.

Lynn (60 minute) Chandrois, Michigan State halfback, actually played 60 minutes in the game this year and 55 minutes in four others.

Iowa Coed Is Strangled, Youth Held

Iowa City, Ia., Dec. 12 — (AP) — A pretty Iowa coed who met death at the "Empty Arms" rooming house was strangled with such force that bones in her neck were broken the coroner disclosed today.

Dr. George D. Callahan, who has formally described the slaying of Margaret Ann (Gee-Gee) Jackson, 20, as "murder by strangulation," added one more detail this morning.

"Bones were broken in her neck," he said.

The golden-haired girl's infatuated escort, Robert Emil Bednasek, 24, was to be arraigned at 2 p. m. today on a charge of first degree murder.

Bednasek, who said he loved the girl, wine and dined her at a lobster party for two in a room at the "Empty Arms" and then took her to a fraternal dance Saturday night before the slaying.

The dinner was ordered from a local cafe.

Her death occurred when they returned afterward to the three-story frame dwelling for men students.

Coroner Callahan said Bednasek first told authorities "I must have killed her" but later explained his mind was "a blank" at the time she died.

Bednasek told a newsman his mind was hazy but he believed they were "practicing some judo holds."

Both Bednasek and Miss Jackson were seniors majoring in psychology at the University of Iowa. She was from Burlington, Ia., and he is from Cedar Rapids, Ia. Each is an only child.

In his jail cell last night Bednasek denied to newsmen that he murdered the girl.

Pacing nervously, he said "She was completely in love with me, and I with her. I did not murder her. I have never been capable of murder."

The girl's father, William E. Jackson, an attorney and member of the Iowa parole board, denied his daughter was in love with Bednasek. He said the girl was involved in a "one-sided romance" with Bednasek.

A Kappa Alpha Theta sorority sister said she had been "pinned" (engaged) to Bednasek last spring but sent him a letter back in which she said she was not interested.

Since school started this fall they had been dating often, but were not "going steady," the sorority girls said.

The girl had invited another man to her sorority dance Friday night.

However, Miss Olga Bednasek said at Cedar Rapids her son and Miss Jackson planned to be married "in about four years," after Bednasek completed graduate work.

Mrs. Bednasek said her husky 175-pound son told her when she asked him yesterday if he killed the girl:

"I must have. I was the only one in the room. I don't know how it happened because my mind is a blank."

Sheriff Albert J. Murphy said he was holding a diary found in Bednasek's room. He said authorities would study it, but it was written "in abbreviations" and would be hard to decipher "unless he (Bednasek) will interpret it to us."

During the jail cell interview Bednasek spoke incoherently at times and appeared on the verge of tears.

He said he recalled little of events in the second floor room before he went for police.

"I just remember her lying on the floor," he said. "I picked her up. I guess, I don't remember much about it — just talked to her — thought she had passed out. I tried to wake her up. Then, intuition, I guess, made me sense something was wrong — all bazy."

He said both had some drinks but said he "might not have been drunk."

Bednasek said Margaret had told him many times she loved him and that she could never marry anyone else. He said she told him Saturday night she loved him.

Eagles, Rams to Play for Pro Title

New York, Dec. 12 — (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles and the Los Angeles Rams will bump helmets next Sunday for the National league title, plus a seat next to the Cleveland Browns of the All-American conference's co-champions of 1949 pro football.

The Browns, by routing the San Francisco 49ers, 21-7, in their playoff final in Cleveland yesterday, were champions of the now defunct A-A-C since its inception in 1949. Their four-year reign is a pro grid record.

The Rams had to go right down to the last game of the regular season to clinch the Western division title in the NFL. They blasted Washington's Redskins, 53-27, before 44,889 coast admirers. The triumph assured them of meeting the Eastern division winners, the Eagles, in the titular playoff in Los Angeles.

The Chicago Bears, in their finale, battered the Chicago Cardinals 52-21.

The Eagles, who locked up their consecutive Eastern division title last week ago, merely made their 1949 record more impressive (11-1-0) by dusting off the New York Giants, 17-3.

The Pittsburgh Steelers ousted the Giants from second place in the Eastern section by blanking the weak New York Bulldogs, 27-0.

The Green Bay Packers lost their finale to Detroit, 21-7.

Next Sunday's NFL final will come just one day before the official merger of that league and the A-A-C into a newly formed 13-club organization to be known as the National American Football league.

Reds Release Americans After 81 Days

Seoul, Dec. 12 — (AP) — Two emaciated American officials were back from North Korea today after 81 days confinement by communists. They were returned yesterday. The Soviet backed regime indicated it had given up on its apparent attempt to get some form of United States recognition in exchange for the economic cooperation administration aides, who were delivered to them by a mutinous ship's crew.

Albert E. Willis, 40, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Alfred T. Meschter, 28, of Kinderhook, N. Y., were delivered to them by a mutinous ship's crew.

Mrs. Beatrice Willis estimated her husband lost almost a pound a day and said it would take a lot of home cooking to undo the damage.

"My heart sank when I saw him," she told me today. "He looked like a human skeleton. Why his clothes almost fell off of him. He weighed 190 pounds when he left. He must have lost 60 pounds."

Meschter said the two men were reasonably fit — especially compared with the week before when the communists started feeding them well in preparation for their return. They were not physically mistreated, he said.

The surrounding mountainous bristled with earthen emplacements of rival guards. Meschter said he shot was heard during the border negotiations for the pair's release. He did hear faint shouts from one North Korean republic and join the northern regime.

The greeting party remained with a gasoline car, a half mile south of the negotiations conducted by embassy first secretary Harold J. Noble and Col. James W. Fraser, the Seoul embassy's military attaché. He wore civilian clothes for the occasion.

Noble said the North Koreans first insisted he sign a receipt for the prisoners in the name of "Kim Jong Il, who says he is home minister of South Korea, but finally withdrew the wording.

The transfer occurred at Yohyon, on the 38th parallel, dividing line between North and South Korea.

End in Sight for Civil Rights Trial

Rome, Ga., Dec. 12 — (UP) — The trial of Dade County Sheriff John W. Lynch and nine other men on civil rights charges in the slaying of seven Negroes went into its fourth week today, with the end in sight.

Lynch, last of the defendants to testify, today was to undergo cross-examination of the story he told Friday of his actions on the night of April 2.

Federal District Judge Frank Hopper hoped to send the case to the jury by mid-week, although it was expected both sides would present rebuttal evidence and make lengthy summations.

Lynch said that he and three deputies, all on trial, were at Hooker, Ga., on a routine patrol when a mob of masked and hooded men came up and forced them to turn over the Negroes. He said something that felt like a pistol was pressed against his back and his own life was threatened.

Other witnesses had placed the law enforcement officers at the scene, but none identified them as having taken part in the actual slaying.

The group is charged under a federal code section, never before used, charging conspiracy by officials in violating the civil rights of the seven Negroes.

Movie Star Makes Lover Boy Bashful

Hollywood, Calif., Dec. 12 — (UP) — "Great Lover" Precht settled down to classes at UCLA today after a hectic weekend so full of dates with glamorous movie star Elizabeth Taylor he couldn't do "a lick of homework."

"I didn't live up to the title 15,000 students wished on him, either," "Great Lover" admitted he didn't once get romantic with the 17-year-old movie queen.

"Oh, golly, no," he gasped. "I couldn't. I was too bashful."

The 19-year-old sophomore more squirmed Liz to the junior prom last night and to a round of fraternity and sorority "open houses" the night before.

In between he gave out with radio and press interviews and consistently denied he had any "special technique with girls."

The husky blond rascal said he was "tuckered out" after the weekend festivities, but ready to "willow" to date the luscious Liz again—this time without so many people around.

"I hardly got to dance with her at the prom," he said. "We sat at a table with three other couples. Her parents were just a few feet away. And every time we got up to dance somebody pulled us off to have our picture taken."

Not much privacy, grumbled the "Great Lover." And Liz looked gorgeous in clouds of green tulle and white tulle. He'd like to take her out again "when we don't have work to do."

"She's swell," he said. "Taking her out isn't like dating a coed. She's from a different world. She has glamour."

After the dance — held in a drafty sound stage at Paramount studios — they went back to her home for a snack of spaghetti and milk and everybody sat around the fireplace and listened to romantic music.

But that didn't give Precht any extra courage.

"Did I kiss her good night? Oh, gosh, no!"

Liz, who's dated millionaires, world-famous football stars, and movie actors—and who's been engaged twice—said the prom with Precht was more fun than the Moccambo.

"He has a lot of poise," she said. "College parties are fun."

The only co-ed who got left with the short end of the thing was Precht's steady girl, pink-Cosgrave. But Molly was under-hecked beauty named Molly Cosgrave. But Molly was under-standing.

"It's okay for a gag," she said. "Just so he doesn't use any of his technique on Liz, that's all."

Rita May Have Her Baby Next Week

Lausanne, Switzerland, Dec. 12 — (AP) — Prince Aly Khan's spokesman says he thinks Rita Hayworth may have her baby this week.

The spokesman, Claude Payot of the Lausanne office, said she hadn't been taken into the complete confidence of the expectant couple. But, said he thinks the birth is imminent.

Rita, who married the prince May 27, has been awaiting the baby in Lausanne since Nov. 5. She has been living quietly and left her hotel suit yesterday for the first time in five days, to visit Prince Aly's half brother, Prince Sadrukhin, on the outskirts of Lausanne.

Payot said he thinks a date has been set for Rita to enter the hospital. But he said he hadn't been told the date.

Princeton, N. J., Dec. 12 — (AP) — A former baseball catcher and army paratrooper from Arkansas is one of the 32 winners of Rhodes scholarships to Oxford university, England.

The other Arkansas candidate Point Cadet Richard Hoffman, Fort for the scholarships was West Smith. Four scholarship ships were awarded in the Gulf states region comprising Arkansas and five other states.

High Court Upholds School Act

Little Rock, Dec. 12 — (UP) — The Arkansas Supreme court held today the White county board of education acted properly in carrying out provisions of the initiated school district reorganization act.

The board put the 11 districts of the county on a referendum in 1949 into one district as required by the initiated act No. 1 of 1948.

Then, however, it reduced the combined district by annexations of portions of the territory to already existing larger districts.

R. Stroud and others contended this action violated initiated act No. 1 — that the board had no authority to make the annexations after once combining the smaller districts but instead should have called an election for directors of the larger district and then turned affairs of the district over to them.

The Supreme Court affirming white Chancery court in its dismissal of the complaint, said the board had the authority to act as it did. The larger district was remembered before an election could have been held, the court said.

The court denied a rehearing for Hollis Edward Needham, former Blytheville taxicab driver, who is under sentence of death for rape of a small child.

In rejecting the petition the court issued a supplemental opinion clarifying one point in its previous opinion affirming the death sentence. This concerned the state's refusal to reverse the case because the trial judge declined a defense instruction concerning the manner in which a confession may be obtained. Customarily rehear-

Governor McMath now must set a new date for Needham's execution, the original date having passed while the case was pending.

Light Showers Aid New York's Water Shortage

New York, Dec. 12 — (UP) — Light drizzles and showers today answered New Yorker's prayers for rain to bolster the city's fast-dwindling water reserves.

But city officials said light rains would not help very much because a weekend of rainfall, amounting to one-fifth of an inch over the watershed area, was "very disappointing" and added only 210,000,000 gallons, enough for only a few hours supply.

This city of 8,000,000 population used 1,000,000,000 gallons of water daily, and its reservoirs already were down to 85,000,000,000 — 33.7 per cent of capacity — according to a test estimates.

Can't Remember About Marrying Gerhart Eisler

New York, Dec. 12 — (UP) — Mrs. Hilde Massing testified today in the second Alger Hiss perjury trial that she couldn't remember what year she married Communist Leader Gerhart Eisler.

"I wasn't to forget this marriage I was not happy about it," she said the smartly dressed 49-year-old witness.

Mrs. Massing was the first wife of Eisler, former U. S. communist underground boss who later jumped bail and fled to his native Germany.

She testified last Friday that they were married in 1919. Today Hiss' lawyer, Claude B. Cross, produced an immigration document giving the year as 1920, and asked Mrs. Massing how she accounted for the discrepancy.

"I am very sorry," Mrs. Massing said. "It might be 1920, it might be 1921. It is difficult for me to remember."

"Can't you remember the day or the month within three years?" the lawyer asked.

Mrs. Massing shook her head. "I know it was in the summer," she replied.

Called as a government witness last week, Mrs. Massing backed up the story of ex-communist Whitaker Chambers that Hiss was a leading member of a communist underground in Washington before the war.

Defense objections prevented her testifying in Hiss' first trial. In the present trial, the prosecution is expected to rest its case this week.

Coal Strike in January Is Predicted

New York, Dec. 12 — (UP) — Most of the nation's 400,000 soft coal miners may be out on a new strike Jan. 1, the New York Times said today.

If United Mine Workers Chief John L. Lewis doesn't call a strike on his own initiative, "the operators may take steps of their own to force him into a strike," the Times said.

Full production under a Taft-Hartley act injunction would be the operators' goal.

Formal contract negotiations between the UMW and the soft coal mine owners are in suspension. But talks between the union and the employers of 80,000 hard coal miners resume here today.

Here's the way the Times sized up strike possibilities in the soft coal fields:

"Leading operators said last night they expected Lewis to order a walkout in an effort to force acceptance of his new contract pattern."

"If he doesn't, the operators may move to force a strike because they believe 'a full suspension of operations would create a national emergency that would impel President Truman to invoke the 80-day injunction provisions of the Taft-Hartley act.'"

Attorneys for the coal operators contend that all mines would be free to operate on a full schedule while the injunction was in force, thus escaping the present three-day-a-week work limit imposed by Lewis in his strategy against the owners.

Influential operators said they were considering forcing a show-down with Lewis by withholding their Dec. 20 payments to the UMW welfare fund. The operators call the present three-day week a "40 per cent strike."

Mrs. Nellie Black said she stopped at the house for a brief visit and was invited in. But she decided to drive on to her father-in-law's home two miles away. Before she reached there, the Wingham house was destroyed.

Three other homes and numerous outbuildings were destroyed or damaged. One, a new home, was demolished, but the family was away at the time.

Several houses and outbuildings were destroyed or damaged at the Velvet Ridge community and one house was damaged at Bradford, which escaped the main force of the twister.
